

As the Governor told groups of mayors and senators in meetings today the best indication that Senate Bill 2310 was barely researched is that legislators are already having to go back and pass corrections. That speaks volumes.

The basic difference in the numbers is this: the Legislature forgot to account for the almost 5 percent annual growth rate in sales tax revenues. The Governor's numbers take anticipated growth rate into account when calculating the revenue loss to the state and municipalities.